SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 19

STURGEON, AS SHAD PROTECTORS.—The

Rocheester Express says:

"The fishermen along the Hudson having refused to remove their nets for twenty-four hours, once a week, in order to allow the shad a chance to move up the river where they are in the habit of spawning. Seth Green has hatched 40,000 young shad, which he has placed in the river, and which will be plentiful to increase to three millions. In three years' time they will have attained a large size, and will then go through shad nets like an arrow through the air, and thus enable the other fish to move at will up and down stream. Sturgeon were very plenty in the Hudson twenty years ago, selling for fifty cents to $1 each, while the present price in the New York and Albany markets is $3 and the demand is greater than the supply. Shad are now selling for a third of the price that they sold for before artificial propagation was introduced, and Mr. Green expects in three or four years hence the price of shad will be reduced in a similar ratio. The shad is valuable as food for the poor on account of its cheapness, while the spawn is used as caviare, an epicurean delicacy, large quantities of which are annually exported to Europe."
